

TULANE JOURNAL OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

Spring 2014

Tulane Journal of International Affairs

SPRING 2014

We believe international affairs is an important area of study for any department.

Editors

Editor in Chief

Minzala Gracia Mvula

Political Economy, Senior from New Orleans, Louisiana

Managing Editor

Emma Tran

Public Health, Sophomore from Houston, Texas

Editors

Elani Owen

Tara Wilson

Nicole Stoumen

Editor In Chief Emerita

Katie Weaver

The Tulane Journal of International Affairs is a student-run research journal. Submissions are judged and edited through an anonymous selection process. Articles decisions are made by the student led editorial board. For submission information, consult the submission gudelines at tjia.tulane.edu.

The Tulane Journal of International Affairs is funded by the Undergraduate Student Government of Tulane University. The articles published in the Tulane Journal of International Affairs do not represent the views of the Tulane Journal of International Affairs, Tulane University, or its Board of Administrators.

Contents

- 5 The Search for Perfection: Understanding the Motives of Nazi Experimentation
Briah Fischer
Public Health, 2013
- 17 Legalizing Same-Sex Marriage: An Obligation Not a Decision
Lindsay Gus
International Relations, 2013
- 41 Robert Mugabe's Africa: Zimbabwe as a Failed State
Giannina A. Murphy
Economics, 2012
- 51 LAN Chile: A Symbol of National Pride
Samuel Roecker
Business, 2014

Editors

Contents

The Search for Perfection: Understanding the Motives of Nazi Experimentation Pamela H. Smith, 2013	17
Legislating Same-Sex Marriage: An Originalist's Dilemma Robert M. Weir, 2013	41
Robert Mugabe's Africa: Zimbabwean Guns and Politics Robert M. Weir, 2013	51
LAU Chile: A Symbol of National Identity Robert M. Weir, 2013

The Un
Na
Bria

The Tulane Journal of International Law is a student-run journal. Submissions are accepted and published on a regular basis. The journal is published twice a year. The journal is published by the Tulane University School of Law. The journal is published by the Tulane University School of Law. The journal is published by the Tulane University School of Law.

The Tulane Journal of International Law is a student-run journal. Submissions are accepted and published on a regular basis. The journal is published twice a year. The journal is published by the Tulane University School of Law. The journal is published by the Tulane University School of Law. The journal is published by the Tulane University School of Law.